

Red Level Quiz #19 - be going to Part A.

Directions: Change the verb from the present tense to the "be going to" future tense (10 points).

Example: He is at home today. (present tense)

He is going to be at home today. (future)

1. He goes to class every day.

He _____ to class tomorrow.

2. I cook breakfast for myself.

I _____ breakfast tomorrow morning.

3. Laura does her laundry at the laundromat.

Laura _____ her laundry this Saturday.

4. They don't drive when there's heavy snow. (negative)

They _____ this afternoon because there is going to be a lot of snow on the roads.

5. Are you at home right now?

_____ you _____ at home later?

6. This deal works out well for us.

This deal _____ well for us.

7. We don't need to bring anything to the party. (negative)

We _____ to bring anything to the party.

8. Sheila plays guitar.

Sheila _____ guitar at the ceremony.

9. They buy a new car every year.

They _____ a new car next month.

10. The children ride their bikes around the neighborhood.

The children _____ their bikes to a friend's house.

Part B.

Directions: Form the future tense. Change "will" to "be going to." Pay attention to how the verb changes according to the subject. (10 points)

Example: This will help you.

This is going to help you.

1. The Nelsons will go on vacation next week.

The Nelsons _____ on vacation next week.

2. Will you take another English class next semester?

_____ you _____ another English class next semester?

3. This movie will be interesting.

This movie _____ interesting.

4. Will the store deliver the furniture for free?

_____ the store _____ the furniture for free?

5. I will bring an umbrella.

I _____ an umbrella.

6. What time will the game begin?

What time _____ the game _____?

7. How will you get to school today?

How _____ you _____ to school today?

8. The plants will need water.

The plants _____ water.

9. This rain won't stop any time soon.

This rain _____ any time soon.

10. Joe will have a lot of time on his hands when he retires.

Joe _____ a lot of time on his hands when he retires.